Meet Namewe

Born in 2007 in the United States to an immigrant family of Somali Bantu origin, he marks our first youth born here in the States. Namewe is a member of a large family where he worked hard to be where he is now. From attending kindergarten to graduating from high school, he has now enrolled in college and is ready for the next adventure of his life.

Namewe has been enrolled into our program since sixth grade and stayed until his high school graduation, even spending most of his free time volunteering in the program. Throughout those years, we as Falis Community Service are proud to share his story at the end of this 2025-2026 school year.
